

SUPER ELECTRICITY BOY

Once upon a time in Powerville, Super Electricity Boy was driving around town in his bucket truck. Then he heard a faint. Help! Help! He hopped out and found the mayor at the bottom of a cliff.

Luckily he found an electric winch but the town had lost electric, so he hopped in his truck and went to look for a popped fuse. He could not find one but he did come across a broken power grid. A squirrel had been shocked and popped a fuse. Therefore he put in a new fuse and checked the circuit and went to save the mayor. Once he saved the mayor. He asked “Why did you fall in the first place?” He replied, “So a ten year old boy could enter in the NOVEC youth writhing contest.” “Cool, I hope he wins,” replied Super Electricity Boy. “Me too!”

With the help of electricity, Super Electricity Boy saved the day!

THE END

By Luke Gulick, 10
Fifth grade, homeschooled